Go live:
January 27, 2014
When: February 11, 2014
Where: River Arts Center in Sauk Prairie and the Spring Green General Store

As part of the One Billion Rising campaign, Hope House is sponsoring "This is What Justice Looks Like" Collage Workshop on Tuesday, February 11 from 1-3pm at the River Arts Center at Sauk Prairie High School, 105 9th Street in Prairie du Sac, and repeated from 6:30-8:30pm at the Spring Green General Store, 137 Albany Street.Create a beautiful and meaningful collage that taps into your heart and your knowing. The theme, "This is What Justice Looks Like," comes from the global One Billion Rising (OBR) campaign. Based on the staggering UN statistic that 1 in 3 women in the world will be beaten or raped in her lifetime, OBR is a call to women and men to release their stories, dance, and rise for justice. Hope House invites you to this workshop - come have an enjoyable time while being thoughtful about creating a more just world.All materials will be provided by SoulCollage® facilitator Genevieve Kirchman, no previous experience necessary. Free will offering accepted. With participants' permission, collages will be shown at other One Billion Rising events and online.RSVP greatly appreciated to ensure enough materials. Please call Hope House at 608-356-9123 or email HHShelter@HopeHouseSCW.org . More information, including a downloadable poster, is available at www.HopeHouseSCW.org .
